DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-12 are presented for examination.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Merrymand et al (U.S. Patent 5,553,298) in view of Hirabayashi (U.S. Patent 6,549,936)

3. As to claim 1, Merrymand teaches the invention substantially as claimed including: in a multi-processor computing environment (col. 3, line 33) a method by a first processor for allocating resources for use by a second processor (col. 3, line 65-col.4, line 4; col.5, lines 14-21), the method comprising:

Providing an information to the first processor (the primary processor, col. 3, lines 57-59), the information containing information related to the resources required by the second processor (col. 5, lines 2-4; col.7, lines 8-11; col. 9, lines 49-52) and when required (col. 5, lines 4-10; col. 7, lines 12-16 and lines 22-35; col. 11, lines 7-10);

Parsing the information to determine the resources required by the second processor (col. 3, lines 59-61; col. 7, lines 11-13; col. 9, lines 57-60); and Dynamically allocating the resources at the time needed by the second processor (col. 5, lines 16-21; col. 10, lines 53-56).

4. Merryman does not explicitly teach the information is the script. However, Hirabayashi teaches the information is the script (col.2, lines 38-53). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the teachings of Merryman and Hirabayashi because Hirabayashi's information is the script would allow the job executing instruction to be performed simultaneously with the performance of transferring the plurality of scripts.

5. As to claims 7 and 9, they are rejected for the same reason as claim 1. In addition, Merryman teaches one or more tasks (col. 1, lines 41-43); and

The information containing a map of sequences that will occur during execution of the one or more tasks (col. 8, lines 7-33).

6. As to claim 11, it is rejected for the same reason as claims 7 and 9. In addition, Hirabayashi teaches a script engine for running the script file (execution managing unit, Fig. 11; col.11, lines 14-17).

7. As to claims 2 and 10, Merryman teaches the information related to resources required by a third processor (col. 5, lines 2-4; col. 7, lines 8-11; col. 9, lines 49-52); and Dynamically allocating the resources at the time needed by the third processor (col. 5, lines 16-21; col. 10, lines 53-56).

8. As to claim 3, Merryman teaches the first processor to processing the information (col. 5, lines 14-21; col. 8, lines 7-33).

9. As to claims 4 and 6, Merryman teaches the resources are memory and matrix configuration (col. 1, lines 8-10).

10. As to claims 5 and 7, Merryman teaches the information is the execution sequence of the program (col. 8, lines 31-33).

11. As to claim 8, Hirabayashi teaches the script is an I/O processor script (Fig. 6; col. 8, lines 49-65).

12. As to claim 12, Merryman teaches dynamically allocating the resources at the time needed by the tasks (col. 5, lines 16-21; col. 10, lines 53-56).
